

Why I started Project Management Global

May 1, 2024

I'm Nicola Benjamin, and I started Project Management Global to help passionate and ambitious project professionals achieve more in their careers.

During my 20 years as a project professional (practitioner, trainer and coach) I saw too many of my fellow professionals in unfulfilling role, that left them feeling drained and uncertain of where to go to next.

Especially for those project managers who are independent or even working in large corporate organisations, project management can be a lonely and unforgiving environment.

What's more, now, more than ever, our industry needs talented, innovative and passionate practitioners. Ready to share their unique abilities, skills and experience in order to drive transformation global changes and create a future that we can all be proud to be part of.

I believe that when it comes to achieving our professional aspirations, whether you are just starting your career, or are further up the career ladder, it takes:

- Seeing great role models, whose experiences mirror our own, so we can see and visualise what is possible.
- Having the right mindset and support at every stage of our careers, to help us keep on track.
- Developing the essential habits and the necessary skills and experience to advance ourselves.
- Positive representation and leadership from others like us.
- Building key relationships with like-minded colleagues to help us identify opportunities and open new pathways for advancements.
- And learning and mentorship opportunities from those that have been there before.

That is the mission for Project Management Global.

Me and my team are here to help you make it happen and be the project leader that the world needs YOU to be!
