

Business Moves Group Partners with Iron Mountain to Strengthen Workplace Transformation Projects

February 10, 2026

Business Moves Group (BMG) has partnered with Iron Mountain to deliver an integrated workplace transformation service that brings together physical relocations, asset management, and information governance under a single accountable provider.

The partnership responds to the growing complexity organisations face in managing hybrid estates. According to WORKTECH Academy's *World of Work 2026* report, workplaces are evolving from "productivity theatres to performance enhancers", increasing pressure on organisations to create adaptable environments while navigating complex supply chains and regulatory demands.

Through the collaboration, BMG extends its workplace transformation capability to include records management, digitisation programmes, compliant retention schedules, and secure information storage. This integrated approach allows organisations to consolidate suppliers, improve visibility across physical and digital assets, and strengthen governance in line with regulatory, security, and ESG requirements.

Rachel Houghton, Managing Director at Business Moves Group, said:
"Organisations are dealing with fragmented supply chains at a time when they need clarity and control more than ever. Our partnership with Iron Mountain enables us to support clients across the full lifecycle of workplace change, from strategy and planning through to long-term asset and information governance. It gives clients a single point of accountability and consistent standards throughout."

Bernadette Wightman, CEO UK and Ireland at Iron Mountain, added:

"As organisations consolidate estates and move to hybrid models, they face complex decisions about what to retain, what to digitise, and how to manage information securely. By combining our information management expertise with BMG's workplace delivery capability, we're offering a joined-up solution that reduces risk and delivers measurable outcomes."
